As director of legal collections, Gary helps in the planning, directing, and communication of all strategic and tactical aspects of the firm's collections.

Gary collaborates across departments on various initiatives and projects to improve client and customer service firm-wide. He brings nearly 40 years of experience to the team and attributes his success to having a strong work ethic and problem-solving skills. Having held many roles at Weltman, tenure has provided a strong foundation to best understand and approach the work. Gary's goals are to drive performance at the highest level while remaining compliant to all regulatory and client standards.

Within the consumer collection unit, Gary's clients are focused on compliance and performance. His role is a bridge between the client's needs and the firm's resources needed to support those needs. Clients have described him as passionate, honest, and assiduous.

In his spare time, Gary enjoys being outdoors, boating on Lake Erie, fishing, hunting, hiking, gardening, and planting trees.
